New Student ORIENTATION

R.I.P. Fresh Start. Though the orientation program was full of as many awkward ice breakers as ever, 2017 was the year Fresh Start transitioned to “New Student Orientation.” But not to worry, Fresh Start won’t die quite that easily, as current students will continue to keep the tradition alive for future generations of Titans—just think WOW and Flex.

On a rainy Friday morning, the campus was buzzing with new students, parents, and upperclassmen as the class of 2021 moved into their new homes at Mother Fair. After tearful goodbyes on the Quad, first-year students were whisked onward to a weekend full of ice breakers and activities led by Orientation Leaders. The program provided first-years with the opportunity to get to know each other, while the Late Night performance let them see a whole different side of their student leaders. The neon-themed New Titan Rally, sponsored by CPC, was #lit as the first-years glowed under the blacklight and danced the night away.

The freshman class gets to know each other through a heated game of Rock, Paper, Scissors.

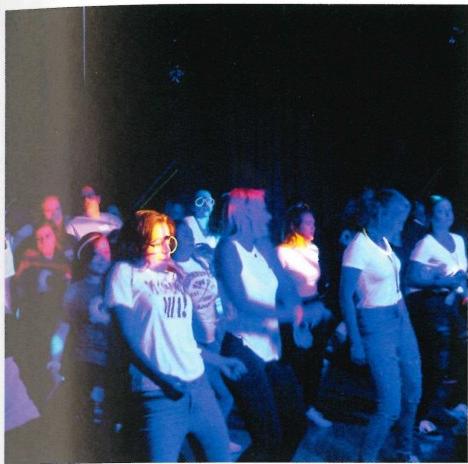

These new Titans quickly show their school spirit at the prospect of getting free WC gear.

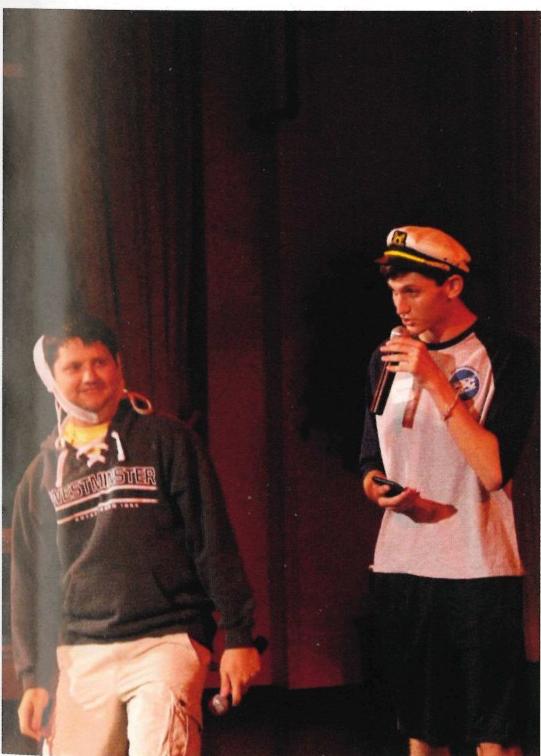

Jessica Wylie, Emily Krinos, Tsubomi Poley, Caroline Hess and Emily Cormnan socialize in between group activities during orientation weekend.

Orientation leaders and first-years shine (literally!) on the dance floor at the neon-themed New Titan Rally.

Orientation leaders help the new students get to know each other through games and icebreakers on the quad all weekend.

First-years pack the stands and show their school pride during the new student pep rally.

Charlie Borges and Matt Bogen earn major laughs for their silly antics as emcees of the Late Night performance.

Homecoming PARADE

Homecoming is that time of year when alumni flood back to their Alma Mater, filling the streets (and Mugsies) with Titans of all generations. Westminster alums came from all over the map to reunite with friends, fraternity brothers, sorority sisters, professors, and everyone else that made their undergraduate home worth returning to. Tearful greetings and commiseration in the the fearful world of adulthood occurred throughout the weekend's festivities. This year's parade theme paid homage to decades of memorable pop culture that alums from any age group could appreciate. Zeta Tau Alpha's "Flinstones" parade float took home victory.

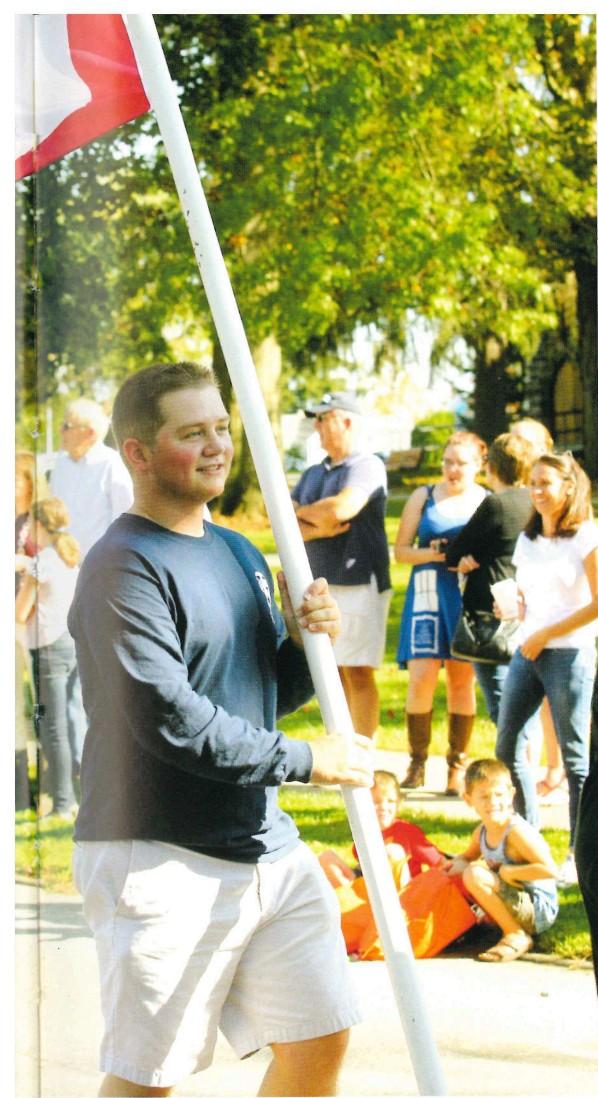

Field Commander Jordan Sherman conducts the marching band.

Phi Mu sisters Annika Erdley and Jesse Reichard bring Toy Story to life with the help of Theta Chi's Sam Stewart.

Brice Bokesch proudly leads the brothers of Theta Chi.

Zeta Tau Alpha candidate Maria Wahal waves to friends and alumni in the crowd.

2016 Homecoming King Carl Carpenter and Queen Abbey Arrigo enjoy one last ride through the parade before passing their crowns to the new King and Queen.

Braden Ball drums to the beat of the marching band.

Student Alumni Association students Elizabeth Smith and Megan Douds carry a banner to show their appreciation to alumni.

Teddy Constantine and Matt McDonald are all smiles after being crowned Homecoming King and Queen.

Alexis Briggs plays trumpet during the marching band's halftime performance.

Homecoming GAME

The Homecoming game was filled with excitement and cheering as the Titans took on the Grove City Grovers. The Titans pulled through winning 49 to 27. With this win, the Titans proved once more that Westminster College, is in fact, better than Grove City. Although it was an enticing game, many students were distracted by catching up with friends and enjoying the multitude of dogs wandering among the crowd. Westminster's finest represented their fraternities and sororities as the 2017 Homecoming Court: Theodora Constantine, Lauren Faber, Megan Beaule, Maria Wahal, Haley Smith, Vanessa Restifo, Matt McDonald, Justin Brandt, David Peffer, Sam Hawkins and Zach Fryda. During halftime, Matt McDonald and Teddy Constantine were announced 2017 Homecoming King and Queen! Current students and alumni used this time to hang out, reconnect and, of course, cheer on the Titans.

Bobby Noble gets into position during the big game.

"Homecoming is my favorite time of year because all of my graduated friends and sisters come back to campus, and we get to catch up on life. Also, everyone is just so excited and the spirit spills all throughout campus."

- Senior Nikki Clayton

Titanettes Courtney Jennings and Shelby Seyler give an energetic halftime performance with the marching band.

The Homecoming Queen candidates are all smiles for this exciting day.

President Richardson congratulates the Homecoming King, Matt McDonald.

Tyler West prepares for his last Homecoming performance in marching band as an undergrad.

Emily Grimes plays a reporter getting to the bottom of the ensuing anarchy.

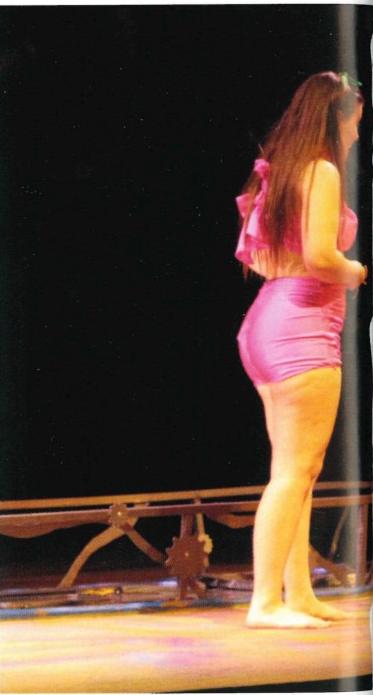

A mother (Michaela Libell) and daughter (Nikki Clayton) discuss familial problems.

The characters of Accidental Death of an Anarchist laugh through the chaos.

Steam punk elements come through clearly in the setting of this scene in Eurydice.

“With the help of the lighting, sounds, and other technical details, the acting in this play had a huge effect on me as a viewer. Every emotion was authentic and so well portrayed, and I felt very moved and connected to this play.”
- Sophomore Brianna Richey

THEATRE

Westminster

The play “Not Drawn to Scale” by student Hunter Steinitz was a creation which arose out of her capstone course. It was a wonderful summary of not only what Hunter and her family have been through, but also those she knows who have the same condition, ichthyosis. Through the play and use of a pictorial slideshow, the audience was able to better know Hunter and her loved ones.

“Slacks and Tops” was the second play on the night’s double bill. The audience was thrown right in the middle of events, causing mild confusion. With the implication that everyone is high on drugs, the performance that ensued was hilarious. The last two minutes were certainly the most hysterical, with lines such as “Africa in my mouth. Africa between my legs” while the actor took his shirt off. Even better was the ending when “Africa” by Toto was played. It was a great end to a wonderful night of plays.

The play “Eurydice” followed the Greek myth of Orpheus as told through his wife’s point of view. The show’s plot, language, and scenic changes were a challenge in creating the play. According to scenic designer and technical director Kallen Eckert, “It’s a show that is meant to be read, not performed.” To fulfill her honors capstone, Eckert researched elements of the play such as the underworld, steam punk, Greek mythology, and the concept of time and memory.

“Accidental Death of an Anarchist” told the story of a mad man who was determined to drive others around him to insanity. As the maniac tried to get the real story behind the suicide of an anarchist, the other characters started going to great extents trying to save themselves. Even though the story was centered around a suicide, the story was carried with humor, with the mad man being the comic relief.

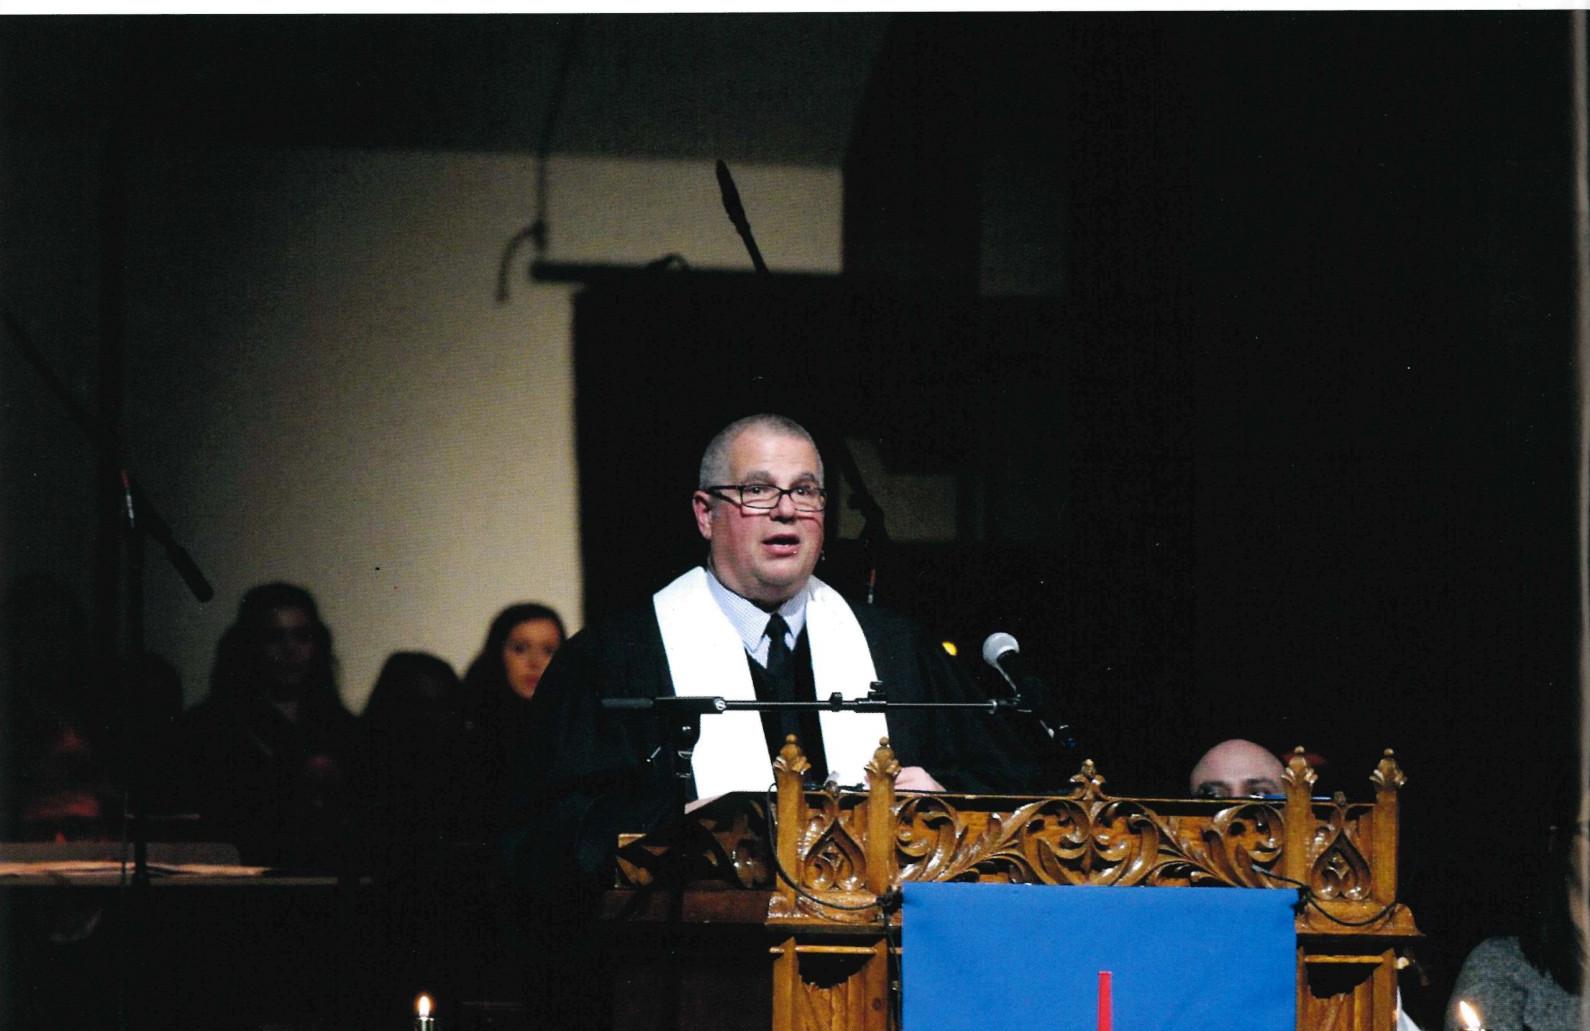

Emily Eyler and Kyle DePasquale put on a passionate performance.

Christmas VESPERS

Westminster finally saw some winter weather on Sunday, December 10th, when it held the annual Christmas Vespers Service. Orr Auditorium was filled with the sounds of Christmas hymns performed by both the choirs and the orchestra. Attendees enjoyed the lighting of the Advent candles and scripture readings by senior students. An inspiring message was given by Reverend Mohr, titled "Expectant Waiting" to guide the audience in preparation for the Christmas Season. The service was as inspirational and beautiful as ever, providing a spiritual connection for both students and family.

Members of the orchestra play with the choir during a hymn.

Right: Elizabeth Smith recites a prayer of reflection after Reverend Mohr's message.

The combined men's and women's choir lift their voices in a traditional Christmas carol.

Abbey Gore reads scripture after a hymn.

“I like Christmas Vespers because it is not just a time to enjoy the handbell choir and orchestra, it is a community event. Parents of students, families of faculty, alumni, and members of the community all come together and it is truly amazing and magical. The atmosphere and all of these people coming together to celebrate really displays Westminster’s reach with the campus and the community.”
- Sophomore Emma Pollock

SPRING EVENTS

Sigma Kappa sisters Marissa Decker, Alexis Arrigo, Rachel Lasecki, and Abbey Arrigo enjoy the view.

“Walking the Brooklyn Bridge and seeing a Broadway show are a few of the things that made my first visit to NYC so memorable! It is so awesome that our small school can provide its students with the opportunity for such a big adventure.”

– Junior Patricia Loughney

Kimu Kim, Dom Schrecengost, and Antonio Troese are embracing an Empire State of mind.

Bailey Frisco, Gina Stephenson, Mckenna Camargo, and Nikki Savini snuggle up with this giant teddy bear.

Emily Bondi, Hannah Santom, Katie Ludwig, and Christian Keegan take a stroll through Central Park.

Liz Smith and Taylor Moon beam brightly despite the rain.

BIG CITY TRIP: NYC

The annual big city trip took Westminster students outside of the bubble for a weekend in New York City. There were endless attractions in the Big Apple, and scrolling through the many Instagram posts that weekend really showed the variety of things to do, places to visit, foods to eat, and drinks to enjoy. NYC night life had a lot to offer: shopping in Times Square until you fall asleep in the racks of disassembled clothes at 3 in the morning, grabbing a loaded milkshake with cake on top from Black Tap, or hitting up the clubs (many blessings to being 21 and older). Foodies hit up social media to learn the best spots to dine while others decided to be the ultimate tourists and go sightseeing to every major destination. However students chose to pass their time in the city, we were all New Yorkers for the weekend.

HABITAT FOR HUMANITY

Spring Break Trip

The crew poses together on site after a long day of work.

Molly Somora, Jen Vogel, Rachel Popelka, and Bryce Emery prepare to climb to the roof and get to work.

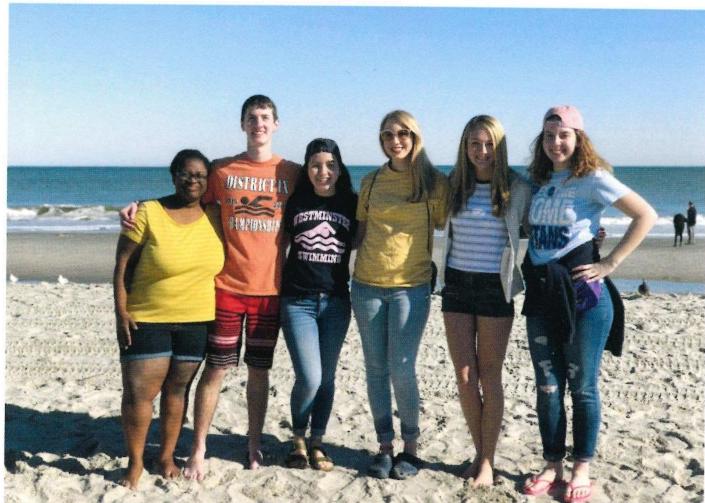

Some of the students take a break to snap a totally candid picture on the newly built railings.

While most students spent their Spring Break on vacation or relaxing, a group of students traveled to Georgetown, South Carolina, to assist Habitat for Humanity. Students spent the week roofing, painting, and helping build homes. They also had the chance to work at a Habitat Restore, an organization that repairs and sells donated items to raise money to build more Habitat for Humanity homes. Besides the daily construction work, students also had the opportunity to visit the Georgetown Presbyterian Church and have dinner with the congregation. They had time to relax, take a ghost tour, tour a plantation, and learn the history of the town. Overall, the Habitat for Humanity Spring Break Trip was filled with hard work, service, learning, and fun for every student who attended!

Patrick Raymond takes in the view before putting shingles on a new roof.

The students had the opportunity to take a break and enjoy the beach after working hard.

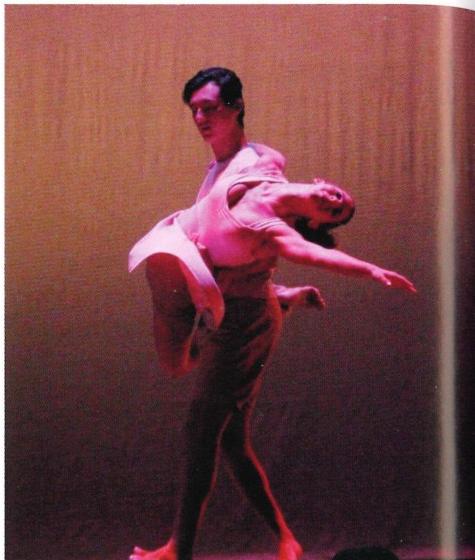

The group gets a chance to relax after a long work week.

Students take a quick meal break and get to know each other better.

Kayla Warmbein and Christian Na stole the show with their breathtaking performance.

"The best part about Dance Theater is the people. Students from all different athletic backgrounds create the show that we have envisioned. By the end of our show week we have 40 new talented friends and a show we crafted together!"
- Senior Kayla Warmbein

Olivia Wright points to the audience as she dances to Treasure by Bruno Mars during the opener.

Kristina Mercer shows that she knows how to get down to the beat.

Nick Kerr and AJ May strike a classic pose during the show opener.

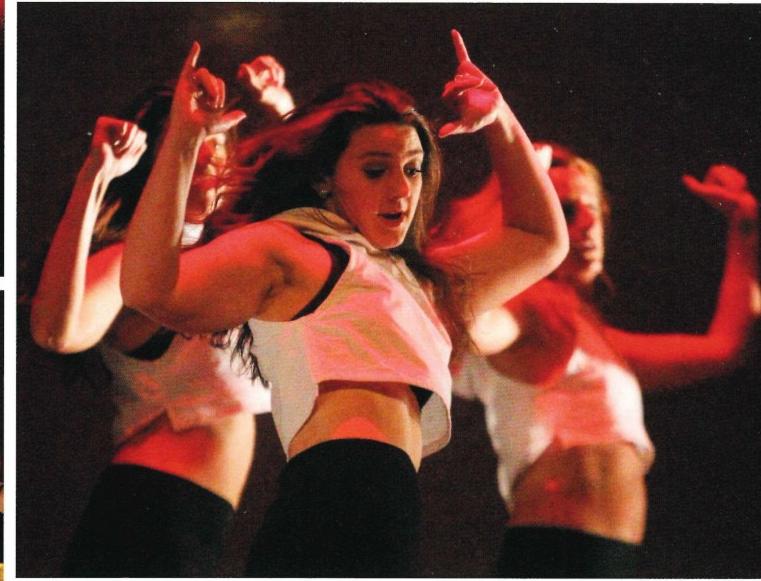

The WC Dance Team lights up the stage with their routine, Burnin' Up.

Abigail Arrigo is all smiles in her red cutoff as she jams to yet another Bruno Mars song.

These sparkly ladies perform a dance to a song from the musical, A Chorus Line.

Courtney Jennings is always feeling herself when she dances.

DANCE

Theater

Each spring, Westminster College hosts their dance theater production. Students spend the entire year choreographing, practicing, and perfecting their routines. Then they put on three toe-tapping performances for the students, staff, and their families. This year's theme was Finesse (based on the Bruno Mars and Cardi B song). Dances ranged from lyrical to tap styles and showed the wide range of talents that Westminster students possess. This year's show had everyone in the audience on their feet and feeling like they were drippin' in finesse.

VOLLEYROCK

Lindy Young, McKenna Robinson, Anthony Goldman, and Whitney Jacks enjoy a successful day of friendly competition with classmates.

Dylan John gets ready to serve the ball to the opposing team.

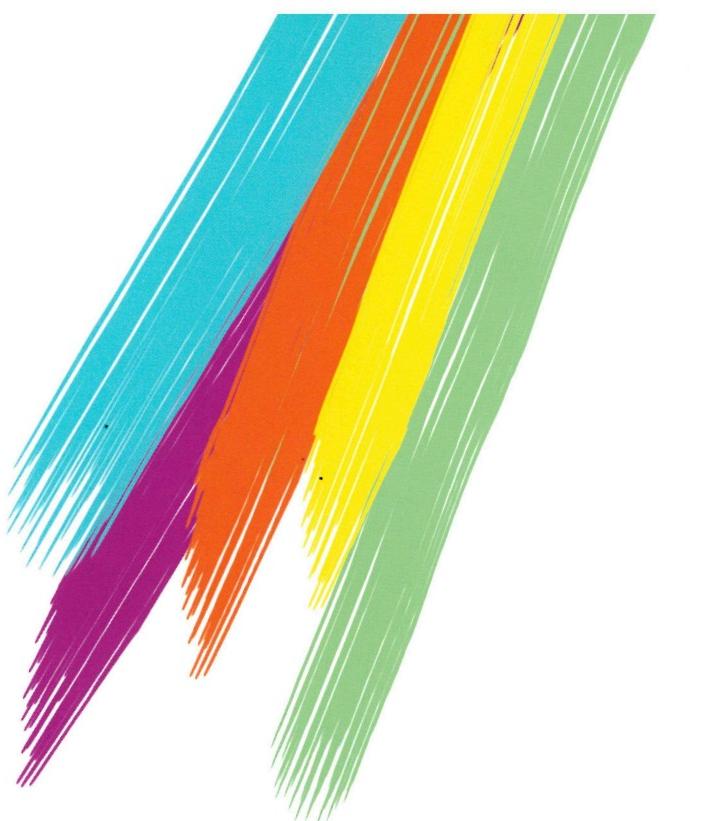

Marissa Decker and Gabby Monaco enjoy warm meals on a cold day.

Haley Moore and Cole Keister enjoy the wrecking ball blow up.

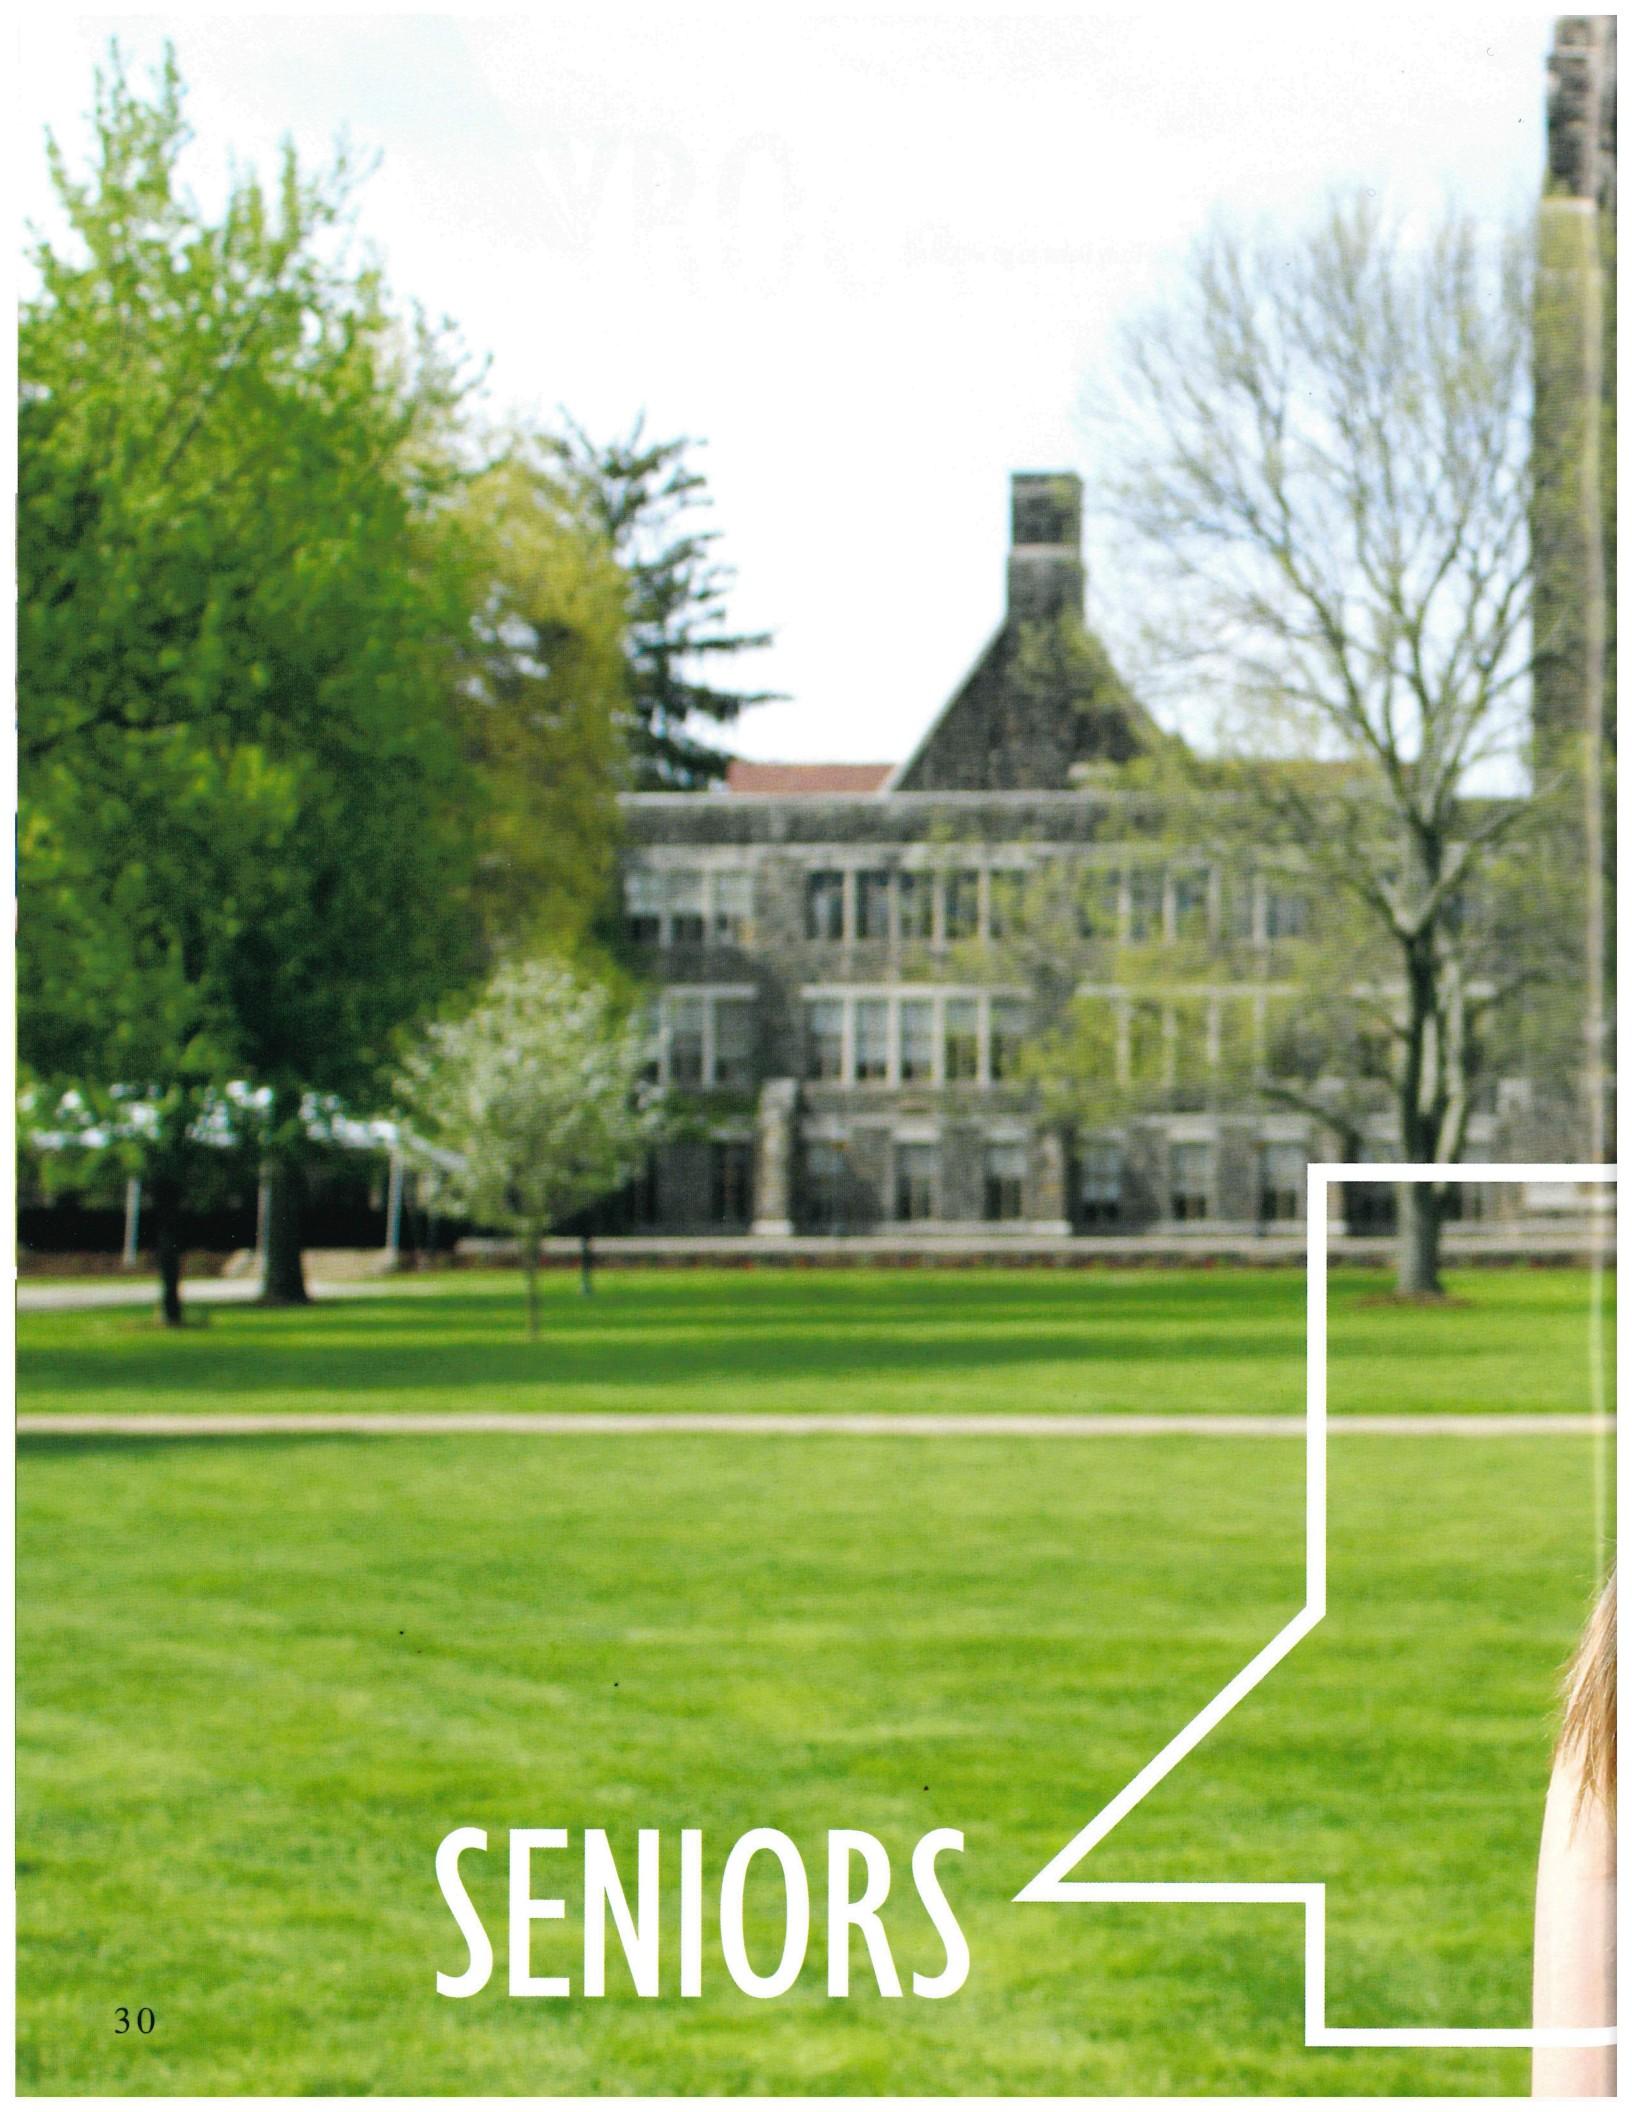

Brett Henderson sports a patriotic crop top and Daisy Dukes to go with the Volleyrock theme.

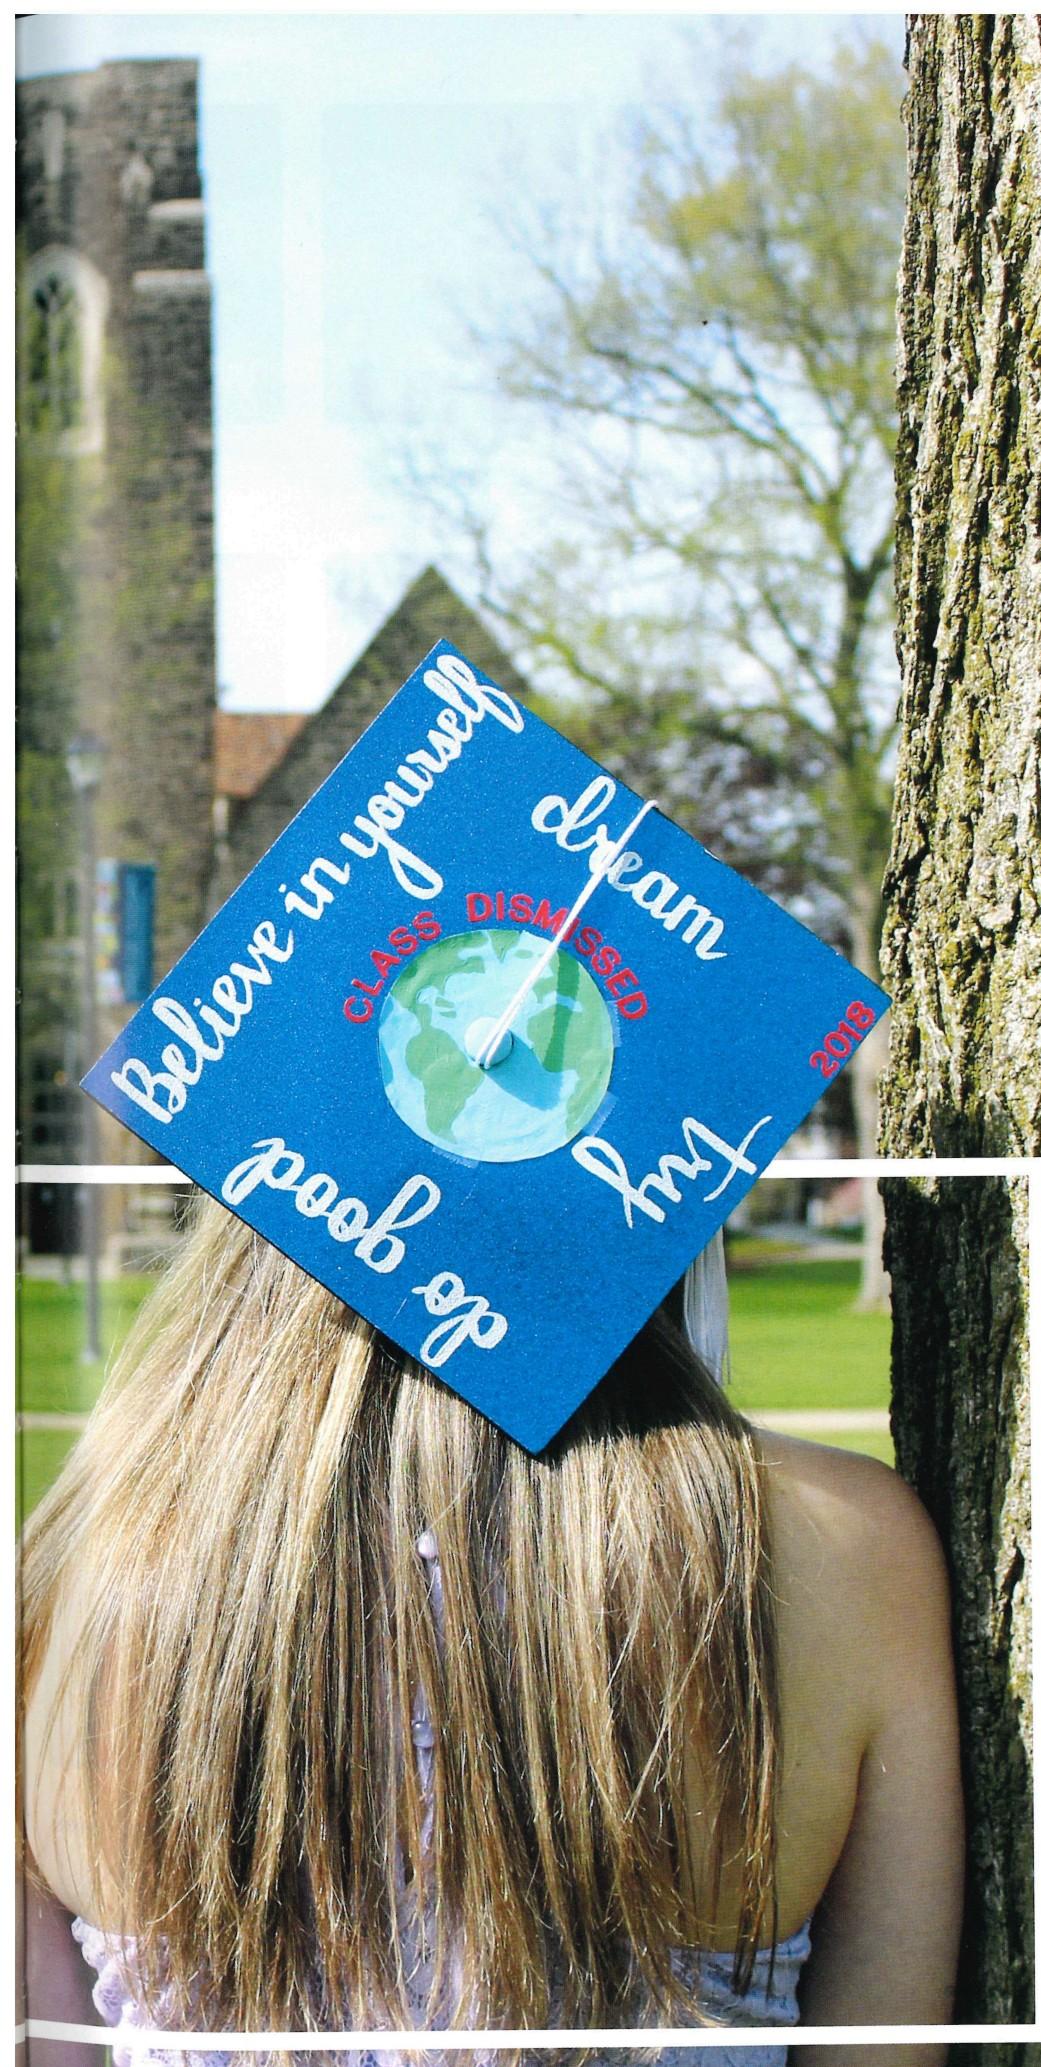

This year's Volleyrock might have been cold, but students still persevered and brought their spirit. Through the American theme we saw a variety of students that came out in their red, white, and blue. With the colors, we also saw the newest and trendiest swag item - the fanny pack. The fanny pack was also accompanied by a visor and a classy Uncle Sam t-shirt. All of the new gear was modeled while students put in tickets for prizes, jumped on the blow up attractions, and waited in line for wings and fries. Although it was cold, the students found ways to keep warm and enjoy the day with their friends. "How I Set Your Mother" took home the gold.

Katie Shaw, Jen Vogel, Sarah Jackson, and Gaby Jackson enjoy each other's company after a fun day on the courts.

What makes Westminster stand out?

"Everyone being friendly and the will to meet new people makes Westminster stand out."

- Deontay Scott

"I know that I've made connections with people that will last forever. I met my second family here. Because it's so small, not too many people can say they went to WC, so when you meet an alumni it's extra special."

- Charlie Borges

"At Westminster there is always a helping hand and friendly smile wherever you go. The people, the professors, and the community that surrounds the college are unforgettable."

- Emily Connell

"WC stands out because everyone fits in. We might be tiny, but there's a club, team, or group for just about everyone who comes to campus. Four years flies by if you find your niche, and there's a spot for everyone here."

What was the number one item on your WC bucket list?

Did you accomplish it?

"All I wanted was to get up on the Old Main bell tower. This past summer I did and the view is just as amazing as everyone says it is!"

- Anna Daniels

"My WC bucket list item was finding my forever friends. I think it's safe to say I've accomplished that."

- Kristen Kubacka

My number one WC goal was to paint the rock, and I did freshman year with my brothers."

- Kyle Mucroski

"I always wanted to travel Europe and I got to do that when I studied abroad in London! Throughout the semester I went to 12 cities in 5 different countries. From Amsterdam to Athens, I learned so much about other cultures. The places I visited and the people I met changed my life, and I don't think I would have had that opportunity at another school!"

- Rachel Eliser

"To spend a semester abroad. Westminster surprised me with the opportunities I was afforded; I spent a whole year in Seoul, South Korea, where I studied for two semesters and interned with North Korean refugees the following summer. I am thoroughly grateful."

- Christian Na

"Amish donuts have been on my bucket list since my first year at Westminster. For my senior year I wanted to go at least once. I have been able to go twice with friends so far and I love it."

- Paige Baierl

"Getting onto the roof of the bell tower. It took until I had less than three weeks left on campus, but I accomplished it."

SENIOR Speakers

Christian Na: President Richardson, administration, distinguished guests,

Megan Douds: Faculty, staff, parents, family and friends,

Both: Thank you for celebrating with us today.

C: I'd also like to thank caffeine, Wikipedia, spellcheck, Twitter, Sheetz mac 'n' cheese bites, and the Fractured Grape for getting me here today.

M: And I'd like to thank you, the class of 2018, for being here to celebrate the "we" in WEstminster. My name is Megan Douds and I have a lot of favorite things about Westminster College. But my first favorite was the bells. In case you haven't realized, the bells go off every 15 minutes. Some of you find them annoying; some of you have learned to tune them out; I personally use them as a reminder of where I am. I use them as a Google maps blip or a location pin to scream, "You are here." I am here. I started paying attention to these bells my freshman year. I was overwhelmed, to say the least. I was facing some ups and downs in my personal life, and I missed my parents (although I definitely wouldn't have admitted that four years ago), and I was just kind of looking for my place. Over the past four years, these bells have served as many things. My wake-up call, my grounding force, my daily reminder that I am exactly where I need to be, and a timer set for every fifteen minutes reminding me to take a breath and enjoy the moment. That's all life really is anyway, it's a collection of moments. Each one unique, each one very short. I'm sure that if you rewind the last four years of your life, you could come up with a moment or two at Westminster that changed you.

C: My name is Christian Na and I'd like to share one of my early transformational moments on campus. As many of you may know, campus lore has it that if you walk up here on senior terrace before your own commencement ceremony, you won't graduate on time. So of course, on my second day of what was then called Fresh Start, freshman-year me was headed to an orientation session when I marched right up here without a clue what I was doing. One of my Orientation leaders yelled at me from that end, "CHRISTIAN, GET DOWN FROM THERE," and explained to me what I'd done wrong. Great way to start college, I thought. But somehow, I made it. It seems we all have.

M: Another Westminster moment of mine was my first chapel service at Westminster. It was the first chapel of the year and the speaker was none other than Dar Huey. I arrived slightly late because, if you can believe it, I got lost on my way there. I sat by myself towards the back. Rev Mohr started the service and one of his requests was for everyone to move up and find a seat because "no one sits by themselves at Westminster." I didn't move, and I was the only one sitting alone. When Rev. Mohr was done introducing Dar, he came and plopped himself down right next to me, and I haven't sat alone at Westminster since. That's one of the most incredible things about Westminster, you're never alone. After four years here, I think that if I walked up to any one of you and asked to sit down, you'd move your things around, pull out a chair, and welcome me to your table.

C: Though nothing is new about what's happening today, practically everything is new and unique about the people to whom it's happening. For one thing, the class of 2018 is the last to know the Titan Club as WOW, the last to see the rise and fall of the popular app, Yik Yak, and the last to have known Hillside as a dorm, not just some creepy building on a hill, or a place to establish a criminal record. But when I tell you it's an honor to be speaking here today, I really mean it.

M: In fact, some of my proudest moments at Westminster have not been related to my own endeavors. My proudest moments are when I see my teammates, friends, and peers achieve something that they have worked for day in and day out.

C: Today, we're standing before athletes on our men's swim team with four consecutive PAC championship titles, members of the Westminster College Wind Ensemble who've played in the Scottish Rite Cathedral and earned distinction from the CBDNA, six biology, chemistry, and environmental science presenters at Pittcon 2018, Katie Joy, a Broadcast Education Association Best Music Video award winner, Jarret Vrabel and Deontay Scott (Slop), basketball players who made it to the all-PAC team, Emiley Westfall, whose documentary was featured on a WQED Primetime broadcast, volleyball player Lexie Yoho, who was named PAC Player of the Year, Jaevon Hardy, Westminster's first All-American in track, Trevor Arrigoni, who presented research at the AMS/MAA Joint Mathematics Meetings, the largest conference for mathematicians in the world, Natalie Paoletta, who sang and played at the 2015 CMA Music Festival in Nashville, Tennessee, students who have represented Westminster College in countries like Spain, France, England, Greece, Costa Rica, Australia, and I heard there was a guy who went to South Korea. I know so many more of you have accomplished great things at Westminster, and you're too numerous for me to name, but you'll hear your names in full in just a moment. Graduating today are dancers, businesswomen, fine artists, chemists, computer scientists, reporters, researchers, volunteers, movers and shakers, thinkers and dreamers, mashed potato bowl eaters, and good friends, all part of the wonderful class with whom I've had the honor to share my college career. Please congratulate the class of 2018 on four years full of achievement.

M: Lots of graduation speakers teach life lessons during their commencement addresses, but I'm no one to pretend I know a thing more about life than you do.

C: But I do, so I'd like to share with you the three most important things I've learned at Westminster. My first is gratitude. I point to three parts of my life when I think of the lessons I've learned in gratitude my parents' insistence that a thankful heart is a happy heart, my internship, which taught me about hardship and hope, and my sophomore year at Westminstar College. That year, I began working with the Phonathon program, where I learned about the generosity of alumni and friends of the college. I also participated in my first Professional Networking Symposium and GIVE Day that year. I came to realize just how involved our alumnae are in the Westminster experience, and how that has impacted every single one of us. It made me think that perhaps there is something special about Westminster, the way it fosters in students a genuine thankfulness for the opportunities we've been given, and inspires us to give back when we can to the Westminster community and to the community at large. At the end of four years, I can say nothing but thank you to this wonderful institution.

M: Who am I kidding? I was just being polite. I've learned a thing or two from Westminster. The first lesson was how to look out for others. Holding the door for the person behind me has become ingrained in me. Sharing your meal swipes makes the world go around. When people leave their bags or laptops behind, they won't be disturbed before their owners return. If you lose something, it will be returned to you. (Thank you to everyone that has returned my mugs that I leave all over this campus, I appreciate you.)

C: My second is listening. I'm still pretty bad at this one, but I'm working on it. Today I'm receiving my B.A. in Communication Studies, and after years of academic inquiry and analysis, it occurs to me that rather than communication, our lives are filled almost entirely with miscommunication. We start our paragraphs with one sentence, then have to spend the rest of the paragraph explaining and refining what we've said. It's meaning we're always striving toward, and I believe whatever stands between people maybe it could be broken down if we all tried to listen to each other more. In times like these, this is a skill ever more valuable.

M: The second lesson I've learned is to follow your dreams and to support others who are doing the same. I have learned that you're never too cool to be excited about the things you are passionate about. Take your passions, run with them, and never look back. I've learned that this life is yours to build, so never stop creating something you're proud of. I've learned that one of the most rewarding things in life is seeing those that you care about succeed.

C: The third? Expect surprises. My freshman year, I never would've guessed that in my time at college I'd tap dance again, live a year abroad, work with North Korean refugees, lead Westminster in a national clothing drive competition, visit the Middle East to learn about peacemaking, organize a campus-wide silent demonstration, or get to compete in state and national public speaking tournaments. And I believe everyone here can make their own laundry list of ways their time at Westminster has surprised them too. If we've learned anything from literature, history, politics, psychology, and all the rest we've learned that things change, and that there are surprises in store for all of us.

M: Finally, I've learned that senior year is full of celebrations. People are getting new jobs, getting into grad school, passing capstone. However, some of the most amazing celebrations occur when we recognize that we are exactly who we are supposed to become. It is hard to make it through four years of college without doing a little soul searching.

Think of the person you were when you moved in to your dorm four years ago. You were probably a little nervous, definitely a little awkward, and much less comfortable in your own skin. Westminster accepted us as we were four years ago. Mother Fair gave us a place to be ourselves, make new friends, try new things, and grow up.

I know everyone sitting here has faced adversity in the last four years. But, after many ups and downs, twists and turns, victories and defeats, you are all sitting right here because you have worked hard, been kind, and never given up.

C: It is my hope, class of 2018, that we continue to work hard, live in kindness, and persevere, and that all our life surprises are happy ones.

M: This family we have built in our four years here is something I am going to miss as I go out into the real world, but I know that I'm leaving here with about 300 fellow alumni that are well versed in the Westminster Way, and if we ever run into each other, I know you'll offer me a seat beside you.

C: It's been an unforgettable few years. I know I speak for all of us when I say they were priceless. That is to say, after tuition, room and board, deposits, fees, and parking tickets from public safety.

M: Class of 2018, it has been a wonderful ride. Thank you for walking beside me on this journey, helping me learn to hold my head high, and reminding me every day that we rise when we lift others. Congratulations, I am honored to be your classmate and friend.

C: 2018, try your best, live with passion, love always. I thank you for the time we've shared, and I look forward to our reunions in all the places we'll go. The world is ours. Let's take good care of it.

B: Thank you.

Graduation left us all with similar feelings as when we entered college; excited, fearful, and hopeful. On a sunny Saturday, the seniors walked across Orr stage to receive the culmination of their undergraduate career. The ceremony included wonderful and uplifting speeches from Dr. Bonomo and Ms. Majoras. The day wrapped up quickly as students took pictures and spent the rest of the day enjoying their success and the lovely weather with their families. Graduation was an emotional day for everyone involved. Saying goodbye to a place you've called home for the last four years is a difficult thing to do. Everyone is very excited to see what the students of the class of 2018 will accomplish. Good luck in all of your future endeavors!

Study ABROAD

Every semester, students take the opportunity to leave the Westminster bubble and spend the semester abroad. During these trips, students experience unique and incredible opportunities that they will cherish for a lifetime. Here is a glimpse of the stand out moments in some of those students' travels.

The friends I made while I was in London make the experience more than just a "once-in-a-lifetime" trip—they make it an ongoing adventure!

- Michaela Bluedorn

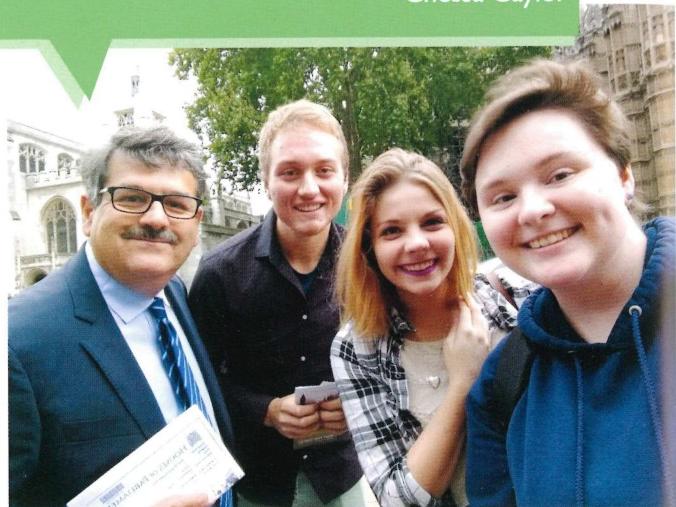

Going to Hobbiton was a dream come true! Definitely worth the 24 hour plane ride to New Zealand!

- Mackenzie Marino

What stood out to me was how well all the students on the trip fit together and how quickly we all bonded and became close friends.

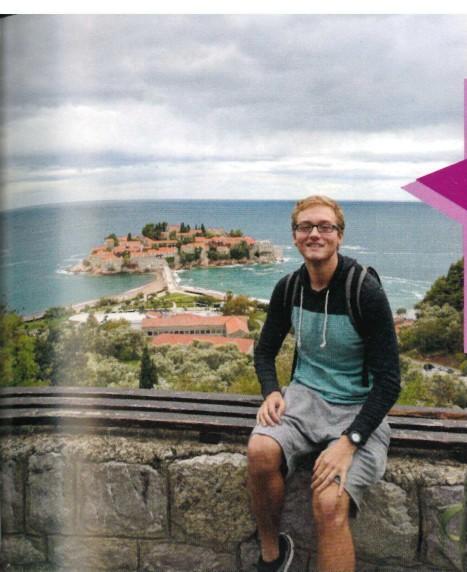

- Chessa Caylor

What stands out to me is the history that surrounds you with every step you take.

- Victoria Cidor

"If I had done something differently, it wouldn't be you. I would be someone else looking back, asking a different set of questions."
-Max Payment

- Lucas Turner

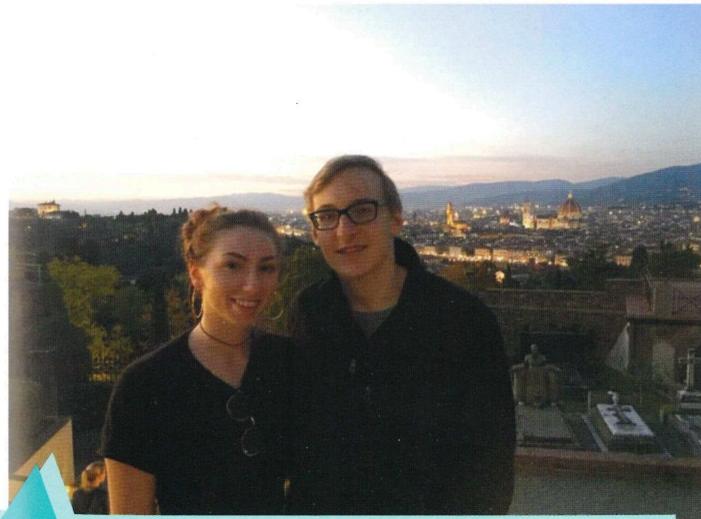

We are here for a good time not a long time.

- Anna Muraca

Being able to travel freely in Europe to places like Paris and Krakow was incredible and something everyone should be able to experience with people and staff who were both amazing and supportive.

- Hannah Love

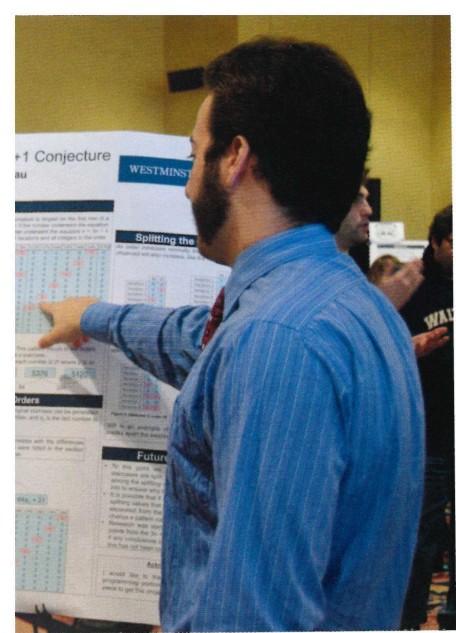

Florence was arguably the prettiest place we visited. We hiked to the top of Piazza de Michelangelo and we truly felt like we were on top of the world with no worries.

- Jacob Kaylor & Rachel Eliser

I had the opportunity to learn all of the history behind the city of London while living in it, which allowed me to attach meaning to each of the sites I visited.

& URAC

The Undergraduate Research & Arts Celebration is an exciting and anticipated time of year for everyone. Students present their Capstones, class projects, and individual research in oral presentations or poster sessions. Artwork is displayed and the study abroad students discuss their experiences. Student-made movies are screened in Muller theater. URAC is more than just a day of no classes; it's a day to appreciate all of the diversity and variety of interests our fellow students have. Following URAC this year was the Honors Convocation, where students were celebrated for their achievements in scholarship and academics. Awards were given for the best first-year presentation, the best use of library resources, and the best environmental research presentations.

What interested you in coming to Westminster?

I absolutely love colleges like Westminster. I was an undergraduate at Davidson College long ago that shares educational philosophy and just the feeling of the campus is very similar, so I knew what Westminster represents. I wanted to be back in this type of environment. I love what Westminster is, I love the student population that it serves, I think it does good in the world.

What is it you enjoy most about Westminster so far?

The people. We're here as an academic and intellectual community and as a community of people that care about one another. And so I think it's those interactions that make an educational setting high quality and help everybody to learn, from students up to the president and that's what we're supposed to be about. I love the interactions every day with students and faculty and with staff. One thing I love about my job is that it invites me to interact with everybody, so that broad interaction across campus is really fun.

What goals would you like to accomplish in your time at Westminster?

That is an excellent question. Rather than give you a list of 100 things, which I do have, the word "renewal" comes to mind. I'd say to renew academic programs, to help the president and the leadership team to renew the physical campus in terms of everywhere from academic buildings, to the Hoyt renovation, to dormitories, to sidewalks. I feel like this is a community and a college that deserves to be great. What I like about the word "renewal" is it suggests that we're seeking to change the place by bringing out the best of what's here. This place has a great history and a great legacy and I think to renew all of that and to make Westminster a better place, that's what I want.

Has anything surprised you about Westminster?

I'm constantly amused by the wonderful tidbits of history, the institutional history and the history of the people. You can know two people for a year and then realize you had no idea that they are connected. In terms of the institutional history, the fact that there's a couple of tunnels right under the campus, when you walk around in the older parts of the library or Old Main, and the secret dirt room under Hoyt, there's all these wonderful idiosyncrasies about the campus and the history, the kind of thing that can only accumulate at an institution that was founded so long ago, with decades and decades of really interesting people, and all that accumulates into a really interesting place.

Do you have anything to say to the general student body?

I think to just be proud to be a Titan, be proud to be here, and take care of one another, both when you're here, and take care of each other once you get out into the workplace. I mean that in a very tangible way. One of the powerful things about being at a private, prestigious college is that you've got this built-in network, so you can get out and you can use alumni to help find a career. When you're out there, you can help students and other alumni to get along in the world. I think that comes with a sense of campus pride. I think being engaged and just having pride in the institution, engaging with the institution, having a little pep in our step and feeling proud of who we are as a campus, and then taking that out into the world and helping each other is a powerful thing. That would be my advice.

Dean DASSITER

What interested you in coming to Westminster?

I was at a point in my career where I was looking for a new challenge. I embarked upon a national job search and came across the posting for Westminster College. After doing research I found out that Westminster had a new president, Dr. Kathy Richardson. It's amazing how new college presidents bring in a fresh vision and focus for creating greater standards. I definitely knew I wanted to work for a first-time president that had a new vision and commitment to establishing excellence at every level of the institution. As I was going through the search process, Westminster College became a perfect match for me.

What is it you enjoy most about Westminster so far?

What I enjoy most about Westminster are the people here. Everyone is truly engaged in the life of academia. There is excitement in the air and it truly feels like a community where people respect each other. Westminster students, administration, faculty and staff take pride in everything they do.

What goals would you like to accomplish in your time at Westminster?

During my time at Westminster, my main goal is to revitalize campus life. I want to work with my staff in creating new energy and new excitement about student life on campus. I want like to introduce more student activities, create weekend programming, establish greater resources and support systems for students and improve transportation so that 6 years from now, the Westminster that people knew prior to my tenure is completely different than the Westminster of today.

What has been your biggest challenge or obstacle to overcome so far?

I would say my biggest challenging and obstacle, as it pertains to Westminster, is our location. Previous institutions I've worked at had resources of urban areas within 10 to 15 minutes from the campus. Getting our students outside of the "Westminster bubble" and engaging them in urban centers is a huge challenge that we're preparing to conquer in the near future.

Do you have anything to say to the general student body?

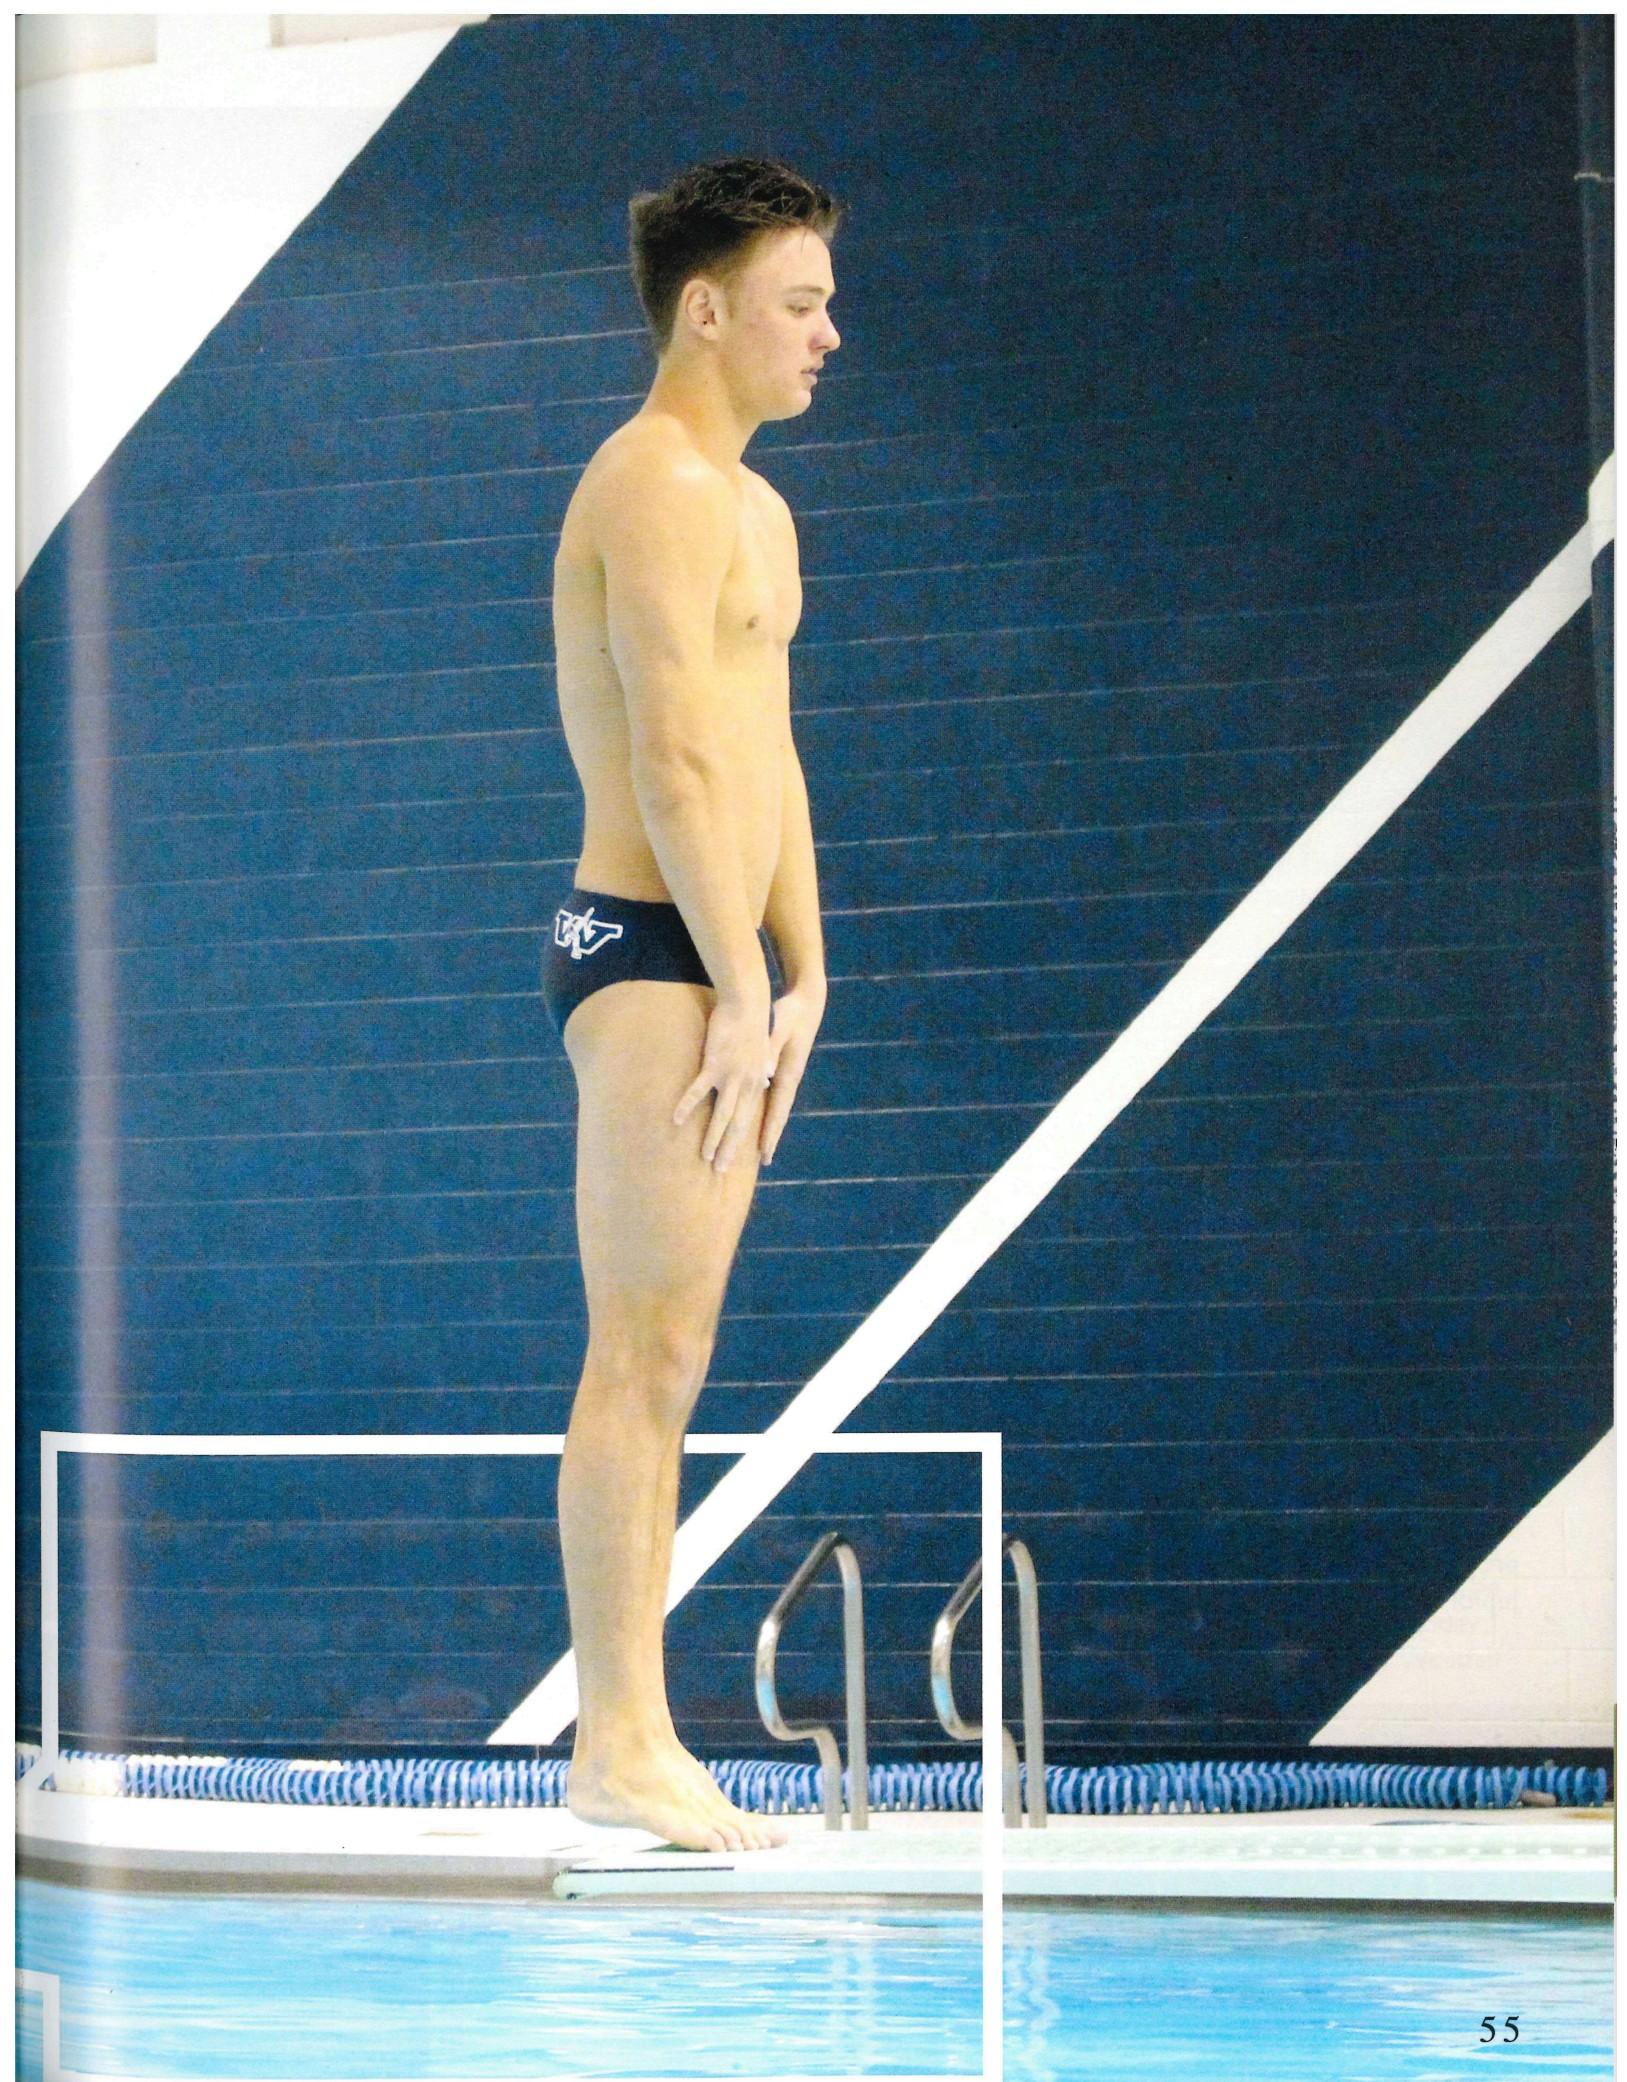

I would like to say that myself and my staff work very hard to ensure a quality experience for students on campus. We're student-centered and student-focused. We're not here to create any roadblocks from students being successful or enjoying themselves. We're here to work with them in shaping an experience they can look back on and really take pride in. We want our graduates to look back and remember that student affairs truly cared about them, and that we did our best to give them an enjoyable and rewarding campus life experience.

The baseball team welcomed a new coach this year, Head Coach Kelly Swiney. They came in fifth place at the Presidents' Athletic Conference and ended the season 15-14 overall, which was their strongest season since 2012. The individual players succeeded in runs, hits, and personal averages which resulted in the team's overall achievements this season.

"It was a good first season with our new coaching staff. It was also our first winning season in a couple of years. We feel like we really turned the program around and set a good tone for the years to come."

Titan softball finished 28-10 this season, and 16-2 in the Presidents' Athletic Conference. They came in second place at PAC's, and even qualified for the Eastern College Athletic Conference. They boasted a 19-game winning streak, nearly breaking school record. Senior Jazmyn Rohrer was the second player from Westminster to earn PAC Player of the Year award and the first in school history to earn the ECAC Pitcher of the Year. The ladies also won a hard fought victory over long time rival Thomas Moore.

"This softball season went really well as a team. We had our ups and downs as a team and individuals, but we never let that defeat us as a whole. Softball is a sport where you learn your weaknesses and strengths. It teaches you teamwork and dedication, and without it I wouldn't be the same I am today."

The men's basketball team proved its skill in a strong season, finishing with a record of 19-8. The team made it to the semifinals of the President's Athletic Conference Championship Tournament, where they lost by just four points to Bethany College. They also earned a bid for the ECAC tournament.

During the season, the team got to celebrate seniors Deontay "Slopp" Scott and Jarret Vrabel scoring their 1,000th career points, the 38th and 39th Titans to ever reach the milestone. Next year, the team hopes to continue to improve, and reach the top of the PAC by winning a PAC. Though they did not make it this year, many team members feel confident in future seasons.

The women's basketball team had a 7-16 season, earning them a spot in the PAC tournament. They faced Waynesburg in the first round of the tournament, and after a tight and competitive game, the Titans fell behind with a score of 86-71. Despite their loss in the tournament, the team's continual improvement shows that this team is not one to be taken lightly.

"Throughout this past season we faced tough opponents, however, it only made us stronger as a whole. We overcame many adversities and for that, I am very proud. We were a fairly young team this year, so the experience that each underclassmen underwent will carry on with them through the years to come. The power of running is liberating for these Westminster ladies. They take pride in their stride, and every step forward is one step closer to the finish line.

Their tireless efforts were rewarded at the PAC Championships, where these women placed third out of nine competing teams. They finished with a team score of 74, the college's best since 2011.

"Cross Country takes as much passion and heart as it does fitness. The team puts in so much unnoticed time and effort, and really the only recognition we rely on in the end is a hug at the finish line from a teammate. There isn't a lot of glory involved, but it takes a lot of guts, and in the end we know that it's less about the miles we've logged and more about the team that becomes family."

The team finished 8-9-1 overall and 3-5 in the conference, putting them at sixth place. First-year Nick Iregui posted impressive stats in his first season. He tied for the most goals in a single season in program history and landed in second for most points in a single season.

"Although the season did not go how we had hoped, I am hopeful for what is to come with this program. We have a lot of young talent and a strong senior class that will be able to lead the team with their abilities and experience."

This season, the girls soccer team had a successful run. Winning 10 games, they made it to the Eastern College Athletic Conference Championship Tournament. They went 5-4 in PACs, taking fifth place. They worked hard and became a closer team as a result. Notably, senior Laura Page finished third in school history with 303 career saves and fourth in WC history with 16 career shut outs.

"This past season showed a lot of heart and determination. This team has shown me that Westminster is my home, and they have become my family."

You could say that the men's swimming and diving team season went "swimmingly." They worked long and hard this year, spending time over Christmas break training in Florida and dedicating hours every day to what they love. Their effort and passion resulted in a phenomenal season, culminating in their fourth straight win at the PAC Championship at Grove City College. Notably, first year Connor May was the first Westminster diver to be named the Men's PAC Diving MVP, along with breaking a ton of records. The men's swimming and diving team could not be happier with their season and have set the bar just as high for next season!

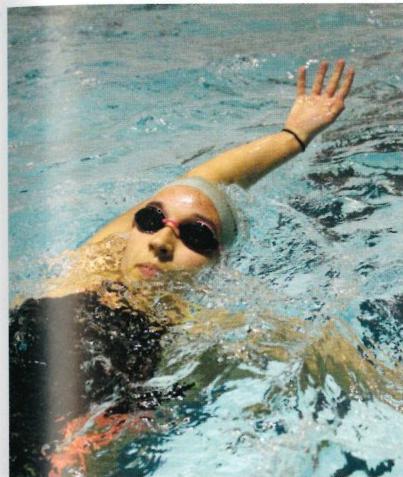

"I think the season went pretty well overall. Clinching our fourth consecutive PAC Championship was an incredible experience that I will never forget, and I was happy to do it alongside the best and most supportive teammates!"

The Westminster women's swimming and diving team can take pride in the work they have done this year. It takes drive and determination to practice so hard and succeed in their sport, and the team has met the standard and gone above and beyond. These women have to balance their time in order to exceed academically and athletically. The work that the team has put in resulted in a great season, and they placed third this year at the PAC Championship at Grove City College. Notably, sophomore Kaitlyn Fast was named the Women's PAC Diving MVP, the first female diver in the history of the school. All in all, the women's swimming and diving team had an exceptional season and plan on working just as hard next year.

The men's tennis team put in a lot of hard work this year, finishing 4-9 in regular season and 3-5 in PACs. Kornel Foremski and Miguel Ascencio both stood out this season for their achievements, earning Second Team Honors at PACs. Ascencio also placed second at number one singles and Foremski placed second at number four singles. With a great season in the books, the team is hopeful for another successful year ahead.

The women's tennis team has an impressive reputation to live up to each year, and luckily, the 2018 season was no exception. In regular season, the team went nearly undefeated in their conference, only losing to their rival, Grove City College. The team went 9-4 overall and placed third in October's PAC championship falling just two points short of Thomas More College. Captain Gabriele Eaborn was recognized for winning one hundred matches throughout her college career. The women had a great season and have no doubts their legacy will continue in the coming years.

"Each player on our team was motivated to achieve success this season. As a team, we went 7-1 in PAC matches. Unfortunately, we fell short at the PACs Tournament, but now every player is even more willing to work hard this off season to get back to the top." Senior Gabriele Eaborn

With 30 wins, the Westminster Women's Volleyball team had a victorious season. The dedication and determination showcased by these ladies led them to the Eastern College Athletic Conference tournament, where they swept the floor with wins. This led to them earning their title as ECAC champions. They ended their season with a record of 30 wins and 6 losses, becoming the third team in Westminster's history to win at least 30 games in a season.

"After playing volleyball for the last 10 years, it was sad knowing this season was my last opportunity to step on the court. We've really grown as a team and figured out how to play well together." Senior Lexie Yoho

These floral Phi Mu's show their love for the sorority.

Chelsea Gregley marches to the beat of the Kappa Delta drum!

Formal Recruitment 2018 may have seen a smaller pledge class than usual, but that certainly doesn't mean these women lacked quality. As an impressive class of ladies flipped their letters in Orr on January 20th, each sorority was blessed with its newest sisters. Excitement, screaming and chanting were just a few of the festivities of the morning. Pictures, food, friendship, and sisterhood followed during the afternoon and into the evening. Bid Day 2018 gave rise to one of the best days of the semester for many Greek women.

Guy's Pick-Up Day was yet another full day of fun for current and new brothers. For breakfast, current brothers dined with the judges and created a welcoming atmosphere at each of their houses before waiting eagerly to meet their new members. Following that was the best part of the day- if you're one of the many screaming girls in Eich field, that is! Fraternity members welcomed their newest additions with open arms. Literally. Brothers opened their arms to new members before tackling them to the ground. The rest of the day was a flurry of fun for each fraternity, with activities like bowling, formal dinners, and brotherhood bonding.

It also gives me the opportunity to be part of amazing service opportunities like Penny Wars and the Service Drive, as well as competing with and cheering on all of the Greek organizations. This week and Greek life in general have given me so many great memories that I'll never forget."

Greek WEEK

Every spring, Greek organizations participate in a week long competition with events ranging from musical chairs, tug of war, and volleyball.

The sisters of Alpha Gamma Delta swept the competition in the service drive, Greek week events, and Sing n Swing. Meanwhile, the brothers of Theta Chi became the first fraternity in 10 years to beat Sigma Phi Epsilon during Greek Week. Besides the trophies and sporting events, the true meaning of Greek week is philanthropy and giving back. As a whole, the Greek community raised over 13,496 items for the service drive, benefiting homeless veterans. Even greater is the fact that over $9,000 was raised for Cystic Fibrosis.

SING N SWING

Greek Week wrapped up once again with the event that everyone dedicates long hours and creativity to: Sing N Swing! Each fraternity and sorority devotes two hours every night of Greek Week to rehearsals filled with fun, sweat, and dance moves. Complete with costumes and lyrics, the event is the highlight of the week. This year's theme was musical artists, so organizations chose from a variety of genres, including Daft Punk, Rhianna, Panic! At The Disco, Justin Timberlake, Queen, the Black Eyed Peas, Michael Jackson, and Hannah Montana. The competition was intense, and everyone had spectacular routines, but the sisters of Alpha Gamma Delta and the brothers of Theta Chi grabbed the victory with their memorable performances! Other victories of the evening went to Luke Turner and Nikki Anderson, who were named Greek God and Goddess.

"We had to top our previous show. Most of the brotherhood knew that that was the mentality we had to have to even have a chance at winning. All week long, we worked to the best of our ability to shape and refine a hero's story to an unconventional style of music. Until the curtains went up for us, I was nervous as could be and unsure of what we capable of. But when that curtain did go up, the only thing that mattered was that we were together as a family and the only thing that could stop us was ourselves."

The editors are all about snappin pics, taking names, and touching butts.

Staff members are always doing what they can to reach new heights.

A good staff is one that understands simply climbing on something isn't sufficient enough for a "silly one". We like to climb things.

As you can see, we always support each other and have each other's backs.

The M.I.L.F. on the left is Kate, our fearless leader and the only reason we stay on task.

I've been putting off writing this letter until quite literally the last possible moment. I wanted it to be something heartwarming and thoughtful that would perfectly capture the past year at Westminster and leave an impact on the people reading it. As it turns out, you can't exactly plan that kind of stuff.

You can't sit down and decide that something you do is going to stand out in someone's life. It just has to happen. I think when you start college, you know that it's going to be important. You know you're going to be a different person by the time you leave, but you can't sit down and plan out all the important moments. What you don't realize is that the moments that will really stand out will be the ones that you never expected. I can barely remember graduation, but I can tell you a million stories about late night food runs, lunches with friends, and seemingly insignificant conversations that brightened my day. That's what's going to stand out when I, and you, remember Westminster.

As a yearbook staff, we do our best to capture these moments. The photo staff finds smiles among the crowds, or looks of determination on the field. The copy staff brings to light the emotions and details of events. The editorial staff spends the school year (and the summer) wrapping all of these moments into the yearbook, so that when you're missing WC someday, you can look back and smile.

I want to thank everyone who helped make this book possible. Thank you to my staff, who spent countless hours all over campus getting photos, names, dates, and whatever odd job I requested. Thank you to Kate Ratvasky, our advisor, who had her baby in the fall and still managed to keep us all in line. Thank you to our yearbook representative David Bollman, for making sure we had all the materials and answers we needed to put this book together. Finally thank you to everyone who provided photos (like Nathan LaRicca, Nathan Leary, WC Flickr, and your personal social media accounts), quotes, names, and any other random information we begged you for. I should also thank my friends, for continually postponing dinner so that I could "just finish up my meeting really quick".

Now, I get to hand the responsibilities down to an incredibly talented group who have already started working on next year's book. Cait, Kendall, and Vanessa- I am so excited to see how you tackle your roles as co-co-editors. With all of your different talents and styles, you are going to make a unique and creative yearbook. I can't wait to see how it turns out. I know that you will carry on the tradition of a yearbook, even if it's one that seems to be slipping away in this digital age.

So I probably didn't write a letter that got you in your feels, or made you love Westminster. Those are the kinds of things that just happen after four years of little memories. Eventually they'll become the things that stand out in your mind every time you think about good old Mother Fair. I'm hoping this good looking yearbook helps do that too.

Thanks for making Westminster a place that will forever stand out in my mind,

Laura Page

2017-18 Yearbook Editor-in-Chief

P.S.- Please be nice to us. We do our best.
